US, Turks talk of bases' future

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — U.S. and Turkish officials today discussed terms for reopening American military bases in Turkey.

U.S. Ambassador William D. Macomber headed the American team at the talks — the third round since negotiations opened Oct. 28. The meeting lasted one hour and neither side disclosed details.

Being treated

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Retired U.S. Justice William Douglas, 77, is undergoing skin stimulation treatment to combat pain caused to his left side by a stroke.

A spokeswoman at Good Samaritan Hospital Sunday night denied a report Douglas' treatment includes acupuncture. Roxanne Miller said Douglas is enrolled in the hospital's research pain program which involves through-the-skin stimulation.

Indira's foes heckle during speech

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Scattered demonstrators shouted anti-government slogans today during a speech by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in the first such incident since she imposed a state of national emergency last June.

Mrs. Gandhi was delivering a speech attacking the press to 15,000 school teachers when the demonstrators began. The demonstrators infiltrated the huge crowd at the invitation-only gathering at a public park in adjoining Old Delhi.

Aussie Whitlam launches campaign

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam told voters today that re-election of his ousted Labor Party administration would ensure the survival of parliamentary democracy in Australia.

Whitlam, the first major candidate officially to begin his campaign for the Dec. 13 elections, concentrated his nationally televised address on the constitutional issue of his firing two weeks ago by Governor-General Sir John Kerr.

May halt tour

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham has a serious intestinal infection and may have to abandon his world tour, according to a spokesman.

The Rev. Walter Smyth of the Billy Graham Evangelical Association said Graham, who arrived Saturday from Cairo, was "under treatment, involving heavy doses of antibiotics and some sedation because of fever, stomach cramps and exhaustion."

Brezhnev wins Soviet peace award

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev has been awarded the World Peace Council's highest prize for his efforts toward "the relaxation of world tensions."

The award, announced Sunday by the Soviet Union, coincided with an attack on Nobel peace prize winner Andrei Sakharov. The dissident scientist was accused of "provocations against the motherland."

Blacks, whites clash in church meet

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A sharp clash between black and white church delegates developed today on the first working day of an assembly of the World Council of Churches, whose member states count more than 400 million members.

The arguments centered on West Germany's reported agreement to give South Africa a nuclear capability and a Third World drive to wrest control of some of the assembly working sessions from the traditional grip of American and European delegates.

Pan Am clerks' strike settled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negotiators for some 6,000 clerical employees reached a tentative agreement today in a contract dispute with Pan American Airlines, ending a walkout that was less than eight hours old.

A spokesman for the Airline Division of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters confirmed the agreement, but declined to release details. Picket lines were to be taken down immediately.

Argentine cops seize 17 persons

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — At least 17 persons including a well-known journalist have been seized in the city of Mendoza in raids by the Argentine army, police or unidentified armed men. It was reported today.

A spokesman from Mendoza, 645 miles west of Buenos Aires, said some of the victims apparently had been kidnapped by men wearing hoods while others were arrested in a roundup.

UN's Golan mission bogs down

By United Press International

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim conveyed "concrete" Syrian suggestions to Israeli leaders today and said afterward there were wide differences in the stands of Israel and Syria on renewing the mandate of the U.N. peacekeeping force on the Golan Heights.

"The problems have not been solved yet and it is therefore necessary that I return to Damascus in order to clarify a number of points," he said after two meetings with Israeli leaders.

"Only then will we see how we can solve the problem," Waldheim said after a late afternoon session with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and other top aides that lasted two hours.

Earlier, Waldheim said he conveyed "concrete suggestions" from Damascus.

Asked about reports from diplomatic sources that the Syrians were demanding what Israeli sources called unacceptable conditions, Waldheim said, "This is a very delicate situation and I do not wish to comment any further before this series of contacts is over."

He was due to return to Damascus Wednesday.

Israeli diplomatic sources said Waldheim informed Israeli officials that Syria was attaching a number of conditions to renewal of the mandate. The sources said these conditions were unacceptable.

The sources gave no details on the Syrian conditions, but said they concern the Palestinian question and possible negotiations about further peace moves in the region.

Shortly before Waldheim's arrival, high level Israeli government sources said the United States has secretly pledged not to pressure Israel for any more than cosmetic concessions in possible talks with Syria on a Golan Heights accord, high level Israeli government sources said.

Diplomatic sources said the 90-minute meeting between Waldheim and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon began with "unpleasantness" but later got down to the business of the mandate renewal.

The U.N. peacekeeping mandate expires Nov. 20.

One government official said that at the beginning of the meeting Allon told Waldheim in a frank manner that Israel would limit itself in the talks to the renewal of the Golan mandate.

The official also said Allon expressed disappointment that Waldheim had met in Damascus with Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, especially because the meeting had come within three days of an Arab guerrilla attack which left three persons dead at an Israeli settlement in the Golan. The diplomatic sources said Waldheim replied that he had dissociated himself from acts of terrorism but that U.N. resolutions bound him to maintain contacts with the PLO. They said Waldheim admitted, however, that the timing of the Arafat meeting was unfortunate.

BICENTENNIAL greeting, "Happy Birthday, America," has been painted on a segment of the main arch of the new Pettine Bridge across the Snake River Canyon north of Twin Falls. Completion of the span is anticipated during 1976.

TF asks fewer Albertson's entries

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City and state officials have asked Albertson's to reduce the number of entrances at its proposed shopping center at the North Five Points intersection.

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Millar and officials of the Idaho Highway Department have requested the number and type of entrances be changed to reduce expected traffic problems at the congested five-street intersection, Millar said.

Albertson's has originally proposed to have one entrance on blue Lakes Boulevard North, three on Addison Avenue, East, two on Elm Street and one on Ash Street.

But Millar said the city and highways department felt the number of Addison Avenue entrances should be reduced to one to prevent traffic congestion.

The suggestions were made at a meeting last week between officials of Albertson's, the state department of transportation and the city of Twin Falls.

In addition, the government officials recommended that entrances be rounded, street-type approaches, rather than driveway types of entryways. Highway engineers said these entrances allow quicker, easier access to the parking area, thus causing less traffic congestion.

Millar said he was strongly opposed to permitting left turns from either Addison Avenue or Blue Lakes Boulevard North into the Albertson's parking lot.

"Under no condition will I ever recommend acceptance of left turning movements of Addison or Blue Lakes" into the shopping area, Millar said today.

The plan calls for development of a grocery store on the northeast corner of the lot, a bank on the southwest corner and a row of shops on the northwest side.

Thomas T. Naylor, Albertson's real estate manager for the intermountain region, present at last week's meeting, told state and city officials the company feels it has to develop the property fully.

"We paid a whopping price for this property," Naylor said, and "we have to develop it to the maximum to make it come out right." The food chain purchased the 4.43 acre site for $332,500 this fall.

Millar said he was concerned that the site plan, as proposed, would mean the property would be overdeveloped.

The city requires three square feet of parking space for each square foot of building space, Millar said, and the Albertson's plan as presented doesn't meet the requirement. However, he added that the proposed parking area was "quite close" to meeting the city's standards.

Millar said he felt the Albertson's officials had been cooperative.

"I think the department of highways and the city is working with them to allow them to conduct business in the wisest and safest fashion," he said.

The city, Highway and Traffic-Safety Commission plans a meeting Tuesday to discuss the proposal by Albertson's, Millar said.

Fromme balks at testifying

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette Fromme today refused to testify at her trial for the attempted assassination of President Ford because imprisoned mass murderer Charles Manson and members of his cult were barred from appearing in court.

"It's not my trial, how can I take the stand on my own behalf?" she declared.

"If it's not my trial, how can I take the stand on my own behalf?" she declared.

Wearing blue jail denim and carrying her "sacred" crimson robe, Miss Fromme told

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride that "what I'm saying is, don't make us shoot, don't make us violent."

The decision against testifying because MacBride previously turned down her motion for Manson and other jailed Manson "family" members to appear as witnesses effectively ended her brief defense. Defense attorney John Virga said earlier if she wouldn't take the stand, he would rest his case.

PUC 'not trapped' by plant spending

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Company's obligation of up to $30 million on its proposed coal-fired power plant before receiving state approval has not "boxed in" the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, according to commission president Karl Shurtliff.

Idaho Power officials told the commission last week that the company could face up to $30 million in losses in cancellation charges and money already spent if the IPUC were to disapprove the proposed plant.

"Today, Shurtliff said in an interview that the commission is not trapped into accepting the plant because of the money obligated."

In light of the $800 or $900 million needed to build the plant "a few million in cancellation charges isn't going to tip me over," he said today. He said he was speaking only for himself and not for the commission.

Shurtliff said he does not know whether the IPUC will take a position on the legality of Idaho Power's obligation of millions of dollars for plant equipment for its proposed plant.

Idaho law prohibits a utility from constructing a "plant or system" without obtaining prior approval from the IPUC. Idaho Power's application to build its proposed Pioneer plant is now under consideration by the commission.

Shurtliff said he "wouldn't be surprised" if the commission considers whether major orders should be placed by a utility before a project is approved by the commission. But, he said, Idaho Power isn't the only company that has placed equipment orders before a plant is approved by the commission.

He said that if the IPUC were to consider the matter it would be to come up with general policy rather than to examine the legality of Idaho Power's specific action.

He said Idaho Power was in "a tough position" since it had to order major equipment early in order to be on schedule for building the plant.

If the plant is not approved, Shurtliff said, the commission will have to decide whether money already obligated on it should be paid by company stockholders or customers. He said that if the costs could not be passed on to the customers, "it would sure raise hell with the financial integrity of that company" which, in turn, would hurt customers.

In his testimony before the commission, Idaho Power senior vice-president Robert Klumpp said the company's current obligations on Pioneer could run as high as $39 million.

But, Idaho Power president James Bruce later in the hearing said the total commitment might be as high as $30 million. He also said, the actual loss if Idaho Power were not allowed to build the plant, would likely be much lower, IPUC records show.

Hundreds fleeing LA blaze

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Hundreds of residents were forced to flee their homes in parts of Glendale and the La Crescenta area and parts of the San Fernando Valley today as a raging brush fire, driven by dry Santa Ana winds, forced out in two directions.

The blaze flared through 20,000 acres of brush and destroyed a number of homes in northern Glendale before moving eastward to La Crescenta.

At the same time the flames, whipped by wind gusts up to 50 miles per hour, leaped ridges and burned across the northern rim of the San Fernando Valley.

All schools in the area were closed, and many were being used as evacuation centers.

Four juveniles were arrested for looting evacuated homes in Glendale, a Los Angeles suburb of about 160,000 residents. Many persons in the area were herded out by police officers for their own safety.

A religious retreat was among the structures evacuated shortly after dawn. About 40 persons left along with the hundreds of others in car and truck caravans and on foot.

Fourteen patients of a rest home were evacuated on stretchers and another 85 were taken out of the area by bus when flames neared the structure.

Paramedics set up field hospitals in parking lots in La Crescenta to treat fire fighters for eye irritation and smoke inhalation.

Firemen were backfiring the blaze along a wash in northern San Fernando Valley in hopes of halting the flames before more homes were endangered.

The weather forecast was nothing but bad news for the hundreds of firefighters. It was for hot weather, high winds and low humidity.

Bar reports on prospects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward Levi has received a rundown from the American Bar Association on the qualifications of potential nominees to the Supreme Court, sources said today.

Warren Christopher, chairman of the ABA committee investigating the names on two separate lists of possible candidates to succeed William O. Douglas, submitted an oral report to Levi at the justice Department over the weekend.

The first list, named 11 men, including Sen. Robert Griffin, D-Mich., and Solicitor General Robert Bork, Levi was filled in on their qualifications early last week.

A second, shorter list, submitted by the Justice Department for further ABA review, reportedly includes two women — U.S. District Judge Cornelia G. Kennedy of Detroit and Housing Secretary Carla Hills.

Klumpp said today that he thinks up to $30 million has been obligated, primarily for construction of major materials such as boilers and turbines that have been ordered so far. He said the orders had to be placed early because of the long lead-time involved in getting the equipment.

He said he thinks that ordering the equipment would be considered part of the "planning" process instead of actually part of constructing the plant.

Had the company applied earlier for permission to build the plant, Klumpp said he supposed it would have been possible to obtain such permission before obligating the company by ordering equipment.

Klumpp said having the company's stockholders absorb a $30 million loss would be "disastrous" on the utility's financial reputation and its ability to sell common stock.

Honewife presses button, touches off blast wrecking West Virginia bridge

Span blast husband's birthday present

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Progress and a housewife with 35 pounds of dynamite sent the old and rusting Kanawha Bridge to a watery grave.

For Mrs. Barbara Oros, pushing the button that triggered the explosives Sunday was about the biggest thing that's happened in Charleston since she moved here six months ago.

Mrs. Oros' name was drawn at random in The Charleston Daily Mail's "Blow Up the Bridge" contest.

As the bridge crashed in one thunderous blast before an audience of 10,000, Mrs. Oros said, "This is really a great sight. It's really fantastic."

Progress — with Mrs. Oros' ultimate help — brought an end to the span. After 60 years of linking this capital city with the coalfields of southwestern West Virginia, it has been replaced by a new interstate highway bridge downstream.

Mrs. Oros said she wanted to blow up the bridge because the demolition was on her husband Mike's birthday. The couple and their three children are on hand for the blast.

"I'll bet this is the best present he ever gets," she said.

She did have some unsettling moments. She said the large turnout and a one-hour delay caused by morning fog made her uneasy.

Thousands of a demolition upriver fired a cannon three times minutes before the bridge explosion was scheduled. Each time the cannon went off, explosives company owner Dave

Martin and others flinched. While the crowd waited, a high school band played taps and "Auld Lang Syne."

Police sealed off a 1,000-foot area along Kanawha Boulevard made sure onlookers kept a safe distance. The U.S. Coast Guard ordered all boats out of the immediate area and a fire truck and several ambulances stood by.

Finally getting an all-clear sign, with television cameras and reporters jammed around Mrs. Oros, she pushed the detonator.

The old span crumbled without a hitch. With the crowd cheering, the bridge splashed down in chunks of about 10 tons each. Martin's cranes were poised in the water, ready to confront a 48-hour deadline for clearing the debris.

So heavy river traffic could resume. "Everything went fine," Martin beamed.

Gomes defies radicals, calls council session

LISBON, Portugal — President Francisco de Costa Gomes defied radical threats today and summoned the Revolutionary Council into emergency session to discuss a new compromise aimed at ending the five-day-old anarchy strike by the government.

Leftist troops opposed to the meeting maintained the Communist-backed calls for a two-hour strike in the capital's industrial area to coincide with the emergency council session in the afternoon.

The Communists said similar two-hour stoppages would take place daily until the 19-man council agreed to scrap the Socialist-dominated government and replace it with one of the revolutionary left.

The Socialists threatened to counter the anti-government action with armed force and a government general strike, if necessary.

The president's decision to go ahead with the council meeting came in the face of demands by key military units that it should not be held. These radical troops have maintained a state of readiness to oppose any concessions to the sixth government, since Friday, and called it a "revolutionary alert."

This military threat against any pro-government moves has formed the cornerstone to the campaign by the Communists and far left to force the military to fire the 16-month-old government.

In a blistering anti-Communist speech, Socialist leader Amaro, said 30,000 cheering supporters at a Lisbon rally Sunday night, "If the price of freedom is to fight, we will fight."

He said the people of the conservative north were ready to march on leftist Lisbon if necessary "to defend freedom and democracy."

He accused the Communists of plotting a coup d'etat and following the "politics of treason."

The demonstration was a display of support for the Socialist-dominated cabinet, which walked out Thursday to protest rising anarchy in the capital.

The military's Revolutionary Council was summoned to an emergency meeting to try to resolve the cabinet ministers' walkout.

The ministers have vowed not to return to work until the military backs them with sufficient authority to govern effectively.

"I have read ads about pre-arranged funerals. Can you tell me what this means."

Answer . .

It simply means you may make plans for your own funeral, or that of a relative in advance of need.

You may choose the kind of casket you wish, give information necessary for vital statistics, and make financial plans or payments.

We invite you to call at the White Mortuary and discuss this with us. There is never an obligation and we can answer all your questions.

Stevenson decision may end Daley hope

© Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., is expected shortly to announce he will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

Such an announcement would shatter Mayor Richard J. Daley's hopes of leading an Illinois delegation united behind a Stevenson candidacy at next summer's Democratic National Convention.

Daley has been a principal force urging Stevenson to run for the White House, with Stevenson out of the running, many of the 10 declared Democratic presidential candidates might enter the Illinois primary next March with their own slates of delegate candidates.

Stevenson confirmed last night that "I have made up my mind" on whether to run, but he declined to divulge his decision because he said he felt obliged first to inform Daley and others who had encouraged him.

However, several party leaders outside of Cook County reported privately that they had been contacted by a Stevenson aide, beginning last Thursday, and advised that the senator's decision was negative.

These party leaders are now in the process of holding congressional district meetings to discuss delegate candidates. As long as Stevenson's decision was unknown, they were inhibited to encourage candidates favorable to other presidential hopefuls.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmie Carter, 39, the only hopeful who was preparing to run slates in many districts regardless of Stevenson's intentions.

Newsmen badgered Stevenson about his intentions last night at a testimonial honoring Illinois House Speaker William A. Redmond.

services

BURLEY — Funeral services for David E. Carter, 34, Burley, who died Saturday, will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Burley Second Ward LDS Chapel. Burial will be in Pleasant View Cemetery. Friends may call at McCulloch Funeral Home this evening and Tuesday until noon, and at the church one hour prior to services.

BETTY Schnell, Miss Rodeo Idaho queen, was presented a plaque from Gov. Cecil Andrus in his office in Boise. Shown with the queen and the governor is Tom Shouse, secretary-manager of the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds. Miss Schnell will leave Saturday for Oklahoma City to compete in the Miss America Rodeo contest.

TF County Fair set Sept. 8-11

FILER — The Twin Falls County Fair, for 1976, will be held Sept. 8-11, according to Tom Shouse, secretary-manager.

Dates for the fair were scheduled at a recent Idaho State Fair and Rodeo convention in Idaho Falls which Shouse attended.

Betty Schnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schnell, Rogerson, and the current Miss Rodeo Idaho, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Shouse to the convention. Miss Schnell will leave Saturday for Oklahoma City, Okla., to compete in the National Miss America Rodeo contest. She will be accompanied by her parents, the Shouses, and a number of friends and relatives.

Cattlemen to assess members

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association voted Saturday to charge cattlemen to raise money for an environmental impact statement on the Challis Grazing Unit.

The resolution calling for the assessment said the funds collected would be used to secure aid in presenting the cattlemen's side in the impact statement, required after a lawsuit was filed by the National Resource Defense Council.

The lawsuit contended the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) was providing grazing land without taking steps to see that the land was improved. A federal judge later ruled that impact statements must be filed covering each of 12 grazing districts.

The assessment, five cents per animal each month for cattlemen using BLM of U.S. Forest Service lands, would continue until all environmental impact statements required under the lawsuit have been completed.

Members also elected officers, choosing David Little of Emmett as the new president; Steve Mahaffey, Tandy, first vice president; and Bud Purdy, Pico, second vice president.

Quality 'improves'

BOISE (UPI) — Reports of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare indicate air and water quality in Idaho are improving, but the public disagrees.

Lee Stokes, director of the department's environmental division, said except for a few problem spots, air pollution and water pollution have been largely tamed in the state. He estimated Idaho industries have spent $70 million to $75 million on pollution control equipment in the past 10 years.

Shoshone crews set for winter

SHOSHONE — Last minute fall work is being done by members of the Shoshone City maintenance crew, according to Clayton Clifford, supervisor.

Trees along the river are being trimmed and winter equipment put into top shape in preparation for winter work.

Drains for water to escape are being checked and cleaned to allow for any runoff that might follow.

The city recently has purchased a used sander from the Idaho Highway Department and has spent $150 to remodel and check snow equipment.

The past summer's work has been varied, Clifford said. He said two miles of city streets were seal coated and three blocks of new streets built in the Mott Addition and on West F Street.

City crews have installed 84 feet of two-inch pipe for the new swimming pool, put in a new six-inch pipe for water main from Greenwood Street and East Fourth to East Sixth and 161 feet of cast iron four-inch pipe on Sixth Street.

A six-inch water main was installed from West Fourth to West Seventh using about 17,065 feet of pipe.

New fire hydrants have been placed on West Fourth and at the Mott Addition and 53 new street signs were installed at various points in the city.

The city's part of installing the new railroad crossings cost $1,232.20 and 192 1/2 hours.

At the city park, city crews have trimmed trees, repaired fences and tables and benches. They also installed a new ceiling at the city fire station and replaced three windows with blocks.

Still on the agenda, in addition to routine work, is installation of a new sprinkler system in the old portion of the city (Mary L. Gooding park).

Taiwan troupe enjoys weather

BOISE (UPI) — The Chinese Acrobats of Taiwan actually enjoyed Boise's cold, snowy weather this weekend.

Dr. Chen Yia Young, leader of troupe which is on its first American tour, explained it never snows in Taiwan, so the 65 acrobats and eight musicians are thrilled with Boise weather.

However, the performing group hasn't adjusted as well to American food and most eat in Chinese restaurants or cook simple dishes in their motel rooms.

The group performed Saturday night at Boise High School Auditorium for the Boise Community Concert Association.

Opposition aired

BOSTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy categorically opposed CIA-inspired political assassination plots, former aide Richard Goodwin wrote in today's Boston Globe.

Goodwin, who was an assistant special counsel to Kennedy, wrote a telegram sent May 29, 1961, to the U.S. consul in the Dominican Republic. It was Kennedy's response to information he received that a few small arms had been given to dissidents in the Dominican Republic.

In part, the draft Goodwin wrote said, "We must not run the risk of U.S. association with political assassination since the U.S. as a matter of general policy cannot condone assassination. The last principle is overriding and must prevail in doubtful situations."

Goodwin said the language "as a matter of policy" and "overriding" was "clearly pencilled in the President's handwriting" on the draft.

Goodwin said, "This was the first and only policy statement made by President Kennedy on the subject of assassinations. It was circulated in the departments of State, Defense and to the CIA. It was never withdrawn, overridden or modified. It is not only part of the record of direct presidential involvement, it is the only record that exists."

The 'arthrititis of power'

By NEA/London Economist News Service

There were spectres haunting Europe again this Halloween: not Marx's vision of the future, this time, but elderly spectres of time past, the ghosts that dog ageing political systems which do not know how to change themselves.

There are precious few countries in Europe that do not have their problems this autumn, with unemployment and public spending going up too fast, and inflation refusing to come down fast enough. But the worst-off are the countries which have to face the social turbulence of the mid-1970's with regimes that have grown arthritic under the leadership of a single man, or a single party, too old and too rigid to bend with the need for change.

Spain waited for General Franco to die, none the wiser about what would happen to Spain when he died.

Across a swathe of southern Europe other countries are waiting for time-encrusted regimes to come to their end (Italy, Yugoslavia), or living with the chaos that follows a regime which delays its end too long (Portugal).

The arthritis of power is institutionalized in communist Eastern Europe: consider Leonid Brezhnev, III, working half-time or less, but still strait-jacketed in office by the limitations of his own one-party system.

All these places have in common: they have tried to change the basic rule of politics.

In politics, as in most other things, there is no substitute for open and recognized competition. It is not an accident that the average age of the rulers of communist Eastern Europe is nearly 66, whereas the democracies of northwestern Europe — the 13 countries north of the Pyrenees and the Alps and west of the river Elbe — are run by men, on average, in their mid-fifties. That 10 years' difference is important.

It is competition that brings the age-level down, just as it is competition that makes it necessary for any politician, whatever his age, to stay on his toes. Competition between parties means that politicians cannot shut their minds to new problems, and new ideas for dealing with them. It generates a secondary competition inside each of the competing points of view. It makes sure that nobody can keep himself plunked in high office subject only to death or his own boredom with hard work.

The one-party system, or the one-man charismatism, or a mixture of the two like Yugoslavia, denies itself all these things. It is too often a guarantee to elderly, tired minds.

Portugal until 1974, and Spain until 1975, denied themselves the benefits of competitive politics because a long time ago they lived through a period of internal chaos which made them willing to accept authoritarian governments, and these governments then chose to be immovable.

Italy, though formally a multi-party democracy, is suffering from a variation of the same trouble: the Christian Democratic party, too long the indispensable cornerstone of every government, is now led by men too old, too corrupted or too tired to deal with the new problems of the new Italy they have created.

The whole of southwestern Europe has come to its generation gap.

These are not merely internal issues. The United States and the European community will no more be able to stay detached from the contest for the Spanish and Italian successions than they were from the upheaval in Portugal. Indeed, they are likely to be rather more closely involved in both. They may have an even harder time with Yugoslavia.

What happens in Yugoslavia after President Tito goes will be almost a mirror-image, left for right, of the situation in Spain. The two countries are much the same size; they have both been under the thumb of old men who tried an experiment with liberalization and then backed nervously away from it; they both have problems with resolute, and economically more advanced, northern minorities.

But Yugoslavia has one special difficulty, its relationship with Russia, which puts it in a category of its own. There was little excuse for the democracies to be caught by surprise by the events in Portugal and Spain. There will be even less in Yugoslavia.

The next few years may be the half-decade of southern Europe, because there is not one oasis of certainty between Belgrade and Lisbon. The succession troubles of southern Europe are a test of the intentions of Brezhnev and post-Brezhnev Russia; they will measure what delicate means, and what the West is prepared to allow it to mean.

But, in their backhanded way, they are a justification of what the West tries to stand for. These countries are in trouble because they did not have a political system flexible enough to face their problems when it reached crisis-point. There are plenty of things wrong with competitive multi-party democracy, but look around, can you see anything better?

Reagan's 'theatrical' politics may hurt GOP

© N.Y. Times Service

(UNDATED) — Ronald Reagan's bid for the presidency really should be tossed to the movie critics. In theatrical terms, win or lose, it is the best script the old trouper ever had: but in political terms, even if he knocked off the President, he would divide his party, and almost certainly assure the victory of the black hat Democrats.

It is a fascinating human drama, and sort of a personal stage triumph for Reagan. Here he is, out of Hollywood, where he was a good Class-B movie actor, and out of Sacramento, where he was a much better governor, and out of a job at age 64, but on the front covers of Time and Newsweek, proclaiming individual human liberty, defying the wicked Democrats, and even challenging the President, a member of his own party.

Presented with such a scenario, even in his old hungry days in Hollywood, when he needed a job, Reagan would probably have said this was ridiculous and wouldn't even "play in Peoria," but the facts of politics are even stranger than the dreams and fantasies of fiction.

No script writer in Hollywood would have dared to suggest the stories of Harry Truman and his election victory in 1948 over Tom Dewey; the triumph and murder of Jack Kennedy; the defeat of Richard Nixon in 1960, and beyond that, the defeat of Nixon for the governorship of California in 1962, his retreat to New York, his return to the presidency in 1968, his spectacular re-election in 1972, and finally his decline, disgrace, and isolated retreat to San Clemente.

All this must have intrigued Reagan more as theater than as politics. Maybe he didn't have a chance to reach out to the presidency of the United States, but even if he failed, it was a good theatrical part in which he would have a world stage to defend the old conservative religion.

Reagan does not come through as Harry Goldwater did in 1964 as the conservative challenger. Their political philosophies are similar, but Goldwater had a conviction, a program and a sense of humor. He was not clever, cautious, or theatrical like Reagan, but he cared more about the outcome, and was hurt when he lost. Reagan is quite different: He gives the impression that he is merely reading his lines. He says the most provocative things in the most kindly and even modest way, like an actor playing a role, and is quite willing, and maybe even eager, to go home when the play is done, particularly if the audience disagrees.

The astonishing thing is that this amusing but frivolous Reagan fantasy is taken so seriously by the news media and particularly by the President. It makes a lot of news, but it doesn't make much sense. Reagan may run ahead of Ford in the New Hampshire, Florida, Illinois and Wisconsin primaries, but even if he does, the delegates at the Republican nominating convention in Kansas City are not likely to abandon their own party and the power and majesty of the presidency, in favor of a former governor of California who has split the Republican party and has little chance of picking up independent or Democratic votes.

If you take a hard look at how to win electoral votes for the presidency in the big states that usually decide presidential elections, you almost have to think that Reagan, who used to be a Democrat, is hurting his own party and the President, and working for the divided Democrats, who also seem to be trying to lose the election.

Reagan planned his presidential announcement precisely like a road show. Beginning, ironically, with the Washington reporters at the National Press Club, whom he detests, and then going on the same day to the main primary election states, it was a classic theatrical production, aimed at Cronkite, Chancellor, Reagoner and the evening network news shows.

Nobody in politics or the theater is better at this sort of thing than Reagan. He has a conservative message. He believes in it with the utmost sincerity. Nobody can fault him on this, but it is arranged in such a way that there is no time for hard questions or difficult answers. These quick announcements are not political exchanges of ideas, but television, and nobody in the presidential race is better at avoiding thought than the former governor of California.

Once he announced for the terrifying job of the presidency, however, the questions on the stage change. From now on, he will be asked not only what he is against, but what he is for; not only why he is worried about Henry Kissinger's policies of détente and compromise in the Middle East; but what he proposes to put in their place.

There is an almost frightening moment between thinking about running for the presidency and announcing that you are running for the presidency. Then, the candidate moves from theatrical myths to political reality and, as he moves around the country, has to stand and deliver.

Reagan has done a service to the Republican party in one sense. He is right in feeling that the theatrical myths to political reality and, as he moves around the country, has to stand and deliver.

Reagan has done a service to the Republican party in one sense. He is right in feeling that the theatrical myths to political reality and, as he moves around the country, has to stand and deliver.

Letters T-N headline 'gossip' hit

Editor, Times-News:

I feel it is about time that I stated my feelings toward your gossip-type headlines in your paper.

I have been associated with Sierra Life Insurance Co. for three and a half years, functioning as a field underwriter. Since I started with this company, it seems that every time I turn around the Times-News is publicizing Sierra at every possible occasion. For what purpose?

Do you realize the contribution Sierra makes to this community? I am sure through the payroll of our employees, property taxes, income taxes, etc., Sierra makes a considerable impact on the economy of this city as well as our state.

When you add Sierra's contributions to service organizations such as United Fund, YMCA, etc., I'm sure you'll agree that the spirit of the community benefits greatly from the presence of Sierra Life.

Yet, instead of appreciating our presence, you at the Times-News seem to feel that we are an albatross, something to scorn, ridicule and destroy.

Every little item, whether of concern to our community or not, is blown up to proportion of concern and biased to the point that we are a bunch of crooks duping the community.

If you think this is as all possible, read and study the laws and regulations of an old line legal reserve company.

In the meantime, sit down and think what you are doing to the policyholders that we have in this community. It is them that you are hurting, not Sierra. Every time someone terminates their policy, because of your sensational headlines they lose years of their lives and cash value reserves that would have been there had they maintained their policies for the purposes that they had been set up in the beginning.

My conscience will no longer let me stand by with no action and let you hurt my company, my friends and my clients without doing a small something. In the future I cannot justify purchasing your paper, nor will any of my family!

Church indignation 'all too selective'

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — On Oct. 10, 1963, the then-atorney general of the United States put his personal signature on a document that launched and legitimated one of the most horrendous abuses of federal police power in this country.

In Sen. Frank Church's subcommittee hearing room last week, the authorized wiretapping and subsequent unauthorized bugging and attempted blackmailing of Martin Luther King, Jr. was gingerly examined, with the "involvement" of the committee in such a way as not to unduly embarrass officials of the Kennedy or Johnson administrations.

With great care, the committee focused on the FBI Tuesday when the committee counsel first set forth the result of shuffling through press clips, it seemed as if no Justice Department had existed in 1962. Wednesday, an FBI witness pointed out that it was Robert Kennedy who authorized the wiretap of Dr. King, and that "the President of the United States and the attorney general specifically discussed their concern of Communist influence with Dr. King."

WILLIAM

But the Church committee showed no zeal for getting further to the Kennedy root of this precedent to Watergate eavesdropping. If Church were willing to let the chips fall where they may, he would call some knowledgeable witnesses into the glare of the camera lights and ask them some questions that have gone unanswered for 13 years.

For example, he could call Nicholas Katzenbach, attorney general Kennedy's deputy, and successor, and ask what he knows of the Kennedy decision to wiretap Dr. King. Who at Justice concurred in the recommendation? How does the FBI know the President was consulted or informed?

After Katzenbach assumed office, and the wiretapping continued, he was told by angry newsmen that the FBI was leaking scurrilous information about Dr. King. Why did he wait for four months, and for a thousand telephonic interceptions, to discontinue the officially approved taps?

Of course, this sort of testimony would erode Church's political base. That is why we do not see former ASAC FBI director Cartha "Duke" DeLoach, Lyndon Johnson's personal contact with the FBI, in the witness chair. What did President Johnson know about the character assassination plot and when did he know it?

What conversations took place between DeLoach and President Johnson of the tapping of Dr. King, or about the use of the FBI in any other intrusions into the lives of political figures?

The committee is not asking embarrassing questions even when answers are readily available. A couple of weeks ago, at an open hearing, an FBI man inadvertently started to blurt out an episode about newsmen who were wiretapped with the apparent knowledge of attorney general Kennedy. The too-willing Lyndon Johnson was promptly shushed and told that such information would be developed only in executive session. Nobody even raised an eyebrow.

That pattern of containment by the Church committee is vividly shown by the handling of the buggings at the 1964 Republican and Democratic conventions which were ordered by Lyndon Johnson. Such intrusions of political headquarters were "worse" than "the crime committed at Watergate, since they involved the use of the FBI, but the Church investigators seem to be determined not to probe too deeply.

If FBI documents say the reports were made to specific Johnson aides, why are those men not given the same opportunity to publicly tell their story so avidly given the past president's men? If Lyndon Johnson committed this impeachable high crime of using the FBI to spy on political opponents, who can be brought forward to tell us all about it?

But that would cause embarrassment to Democrats, and Church wants to embarrass professional employees of investigatory agencies only. A new sense of congressional decorum exists, far from the sense of outrage expressed in the Senate Watergate committee's hearing room. When it is revealed that the management of NBC news gave press credentials to LBJ's spies at the 1964 convention, everybody blushes demurely — and nobody demands to know which network executive made what decision under what pressure.

I have been haranguing patient readers for years about the double standard applied to Democratic and Republican political crimes, and had hoped the day would come when the hardball precedents set by the Kennedy and Johnson men would be laid before the public in damning detail.

Obviously, Democrat Frank Church is not the man to do it. His howl-shaking indignation is all too selective; the trail of high-level responsibility for the crimes committed against Dr. King and others is evidently going to be allowed to cool.

Fifty. You'd think that after all the nation has been through in the past few years, our political leaders would have learned that the one thing that brings you down is the act of covering up.

Soviet strength worries ex-aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger says that during discussions on the Pentagon budget that led to his firing one proposal brought up would have cut 200,000 servicemen from active duty.

That particularly worries Schlesinger because, as he said Sunday in a broadcast interview (NBC's "Meet the Press"), the Soviet Union has "very powerful ground and attack forces" in Europe and elsewhere along Russia's borders.

Schlesinger, fired by President Ford earlier this month, criticized national defense policy, saying:

"We as a nation are indulging in an ostrich syndrome, burying our heads in the sand and not observing what is going on," he said. "The Soviets have increased their military establishment to over four million men. Today they have twice as many men under arms as we have."

The fiscal 1977 defense budget Schlesinger and Ford apparently parted company over is being prepared now. Ford held an unusual Sunday meeting with budget director James Lynn and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft. There were indications more cuts are being considered.

Sources said that at an earlier meeting, late in October, Schlesinger objected to White House-proposed budget cuts that would leave the Pentagon somewhere in the neighborhood of $97 billion instead of an expected $115 billion.

Because personnel costs are already about 60 per cent of the defense budget, a manpower reduction of at least 200,000 would be necessary, he said.

"I trust that the administration will not make such a decision ultimately. We are not going to be in a position to cut manpower procurement year after year and hope that through a miraculous rise in productivity we can maintain a defense establishment equivalent to that of the Soviet Union."

Nader sees vote loss

CHICAGO — If President Ford does not approve legislation creating a Consumer Protection Agency, he will lose one million votes in key states, according to consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

"That is a promise, not a prediction," Nader said at a press conference on "Government by Budget." The University of Illinois sponsored the meeting. Nader said Ford voted for the creation of such an agency in 1971 but now threatens to veto it because of increased cost to the federal government. Nader predicted Ford will veto the legislation.

Legislation for a federal consumer agency has passed both the U.S. House and Senate.

"Even if Ford does not veto the legislation," Nader said, "he probably will appoint a patsy to head it."

Nader, who addressed the conference, also called for simpler language and more congressional input into the federal budget. He criticized federal agencies for their lack of productivity.

Rating dips

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Ford's popularity in the New York City area has plunged dramatically since his refusal to support financial aid for the metropolitan area, the Daily News reported today.

Results of the News' regular opinion poll showed 50 per cent of members of the public surveyed rated Ford's performance as President as poor. The August poll showed only 22 per cent felt Ford was a poor president.

Ford's performance in the White House was rated "very good" by only 3 per cent of the people surveyed in November.

Moynihan's UN future question

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The status of Daniel Patrick Moynihan as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations may be about to change.

He has told friends he is unhappy about lack of support from the White House, and U.N. delegates from allied nations have complained that his outspokenness has needlessly antagonized nonaligned countries. Although Moynihan told reporters Friday he had not resigned, the subject of his future at the United Nations was likely to come up today at a meeting with President Ford at the White House.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Saturday both Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger want Moynihan to stay in the post he has held since June.

U.N. diplomats say Moynihan might agree to remain until the end of the General Assembly session in mid-December but probably not much beyond that.

Moynihan's outspokenness has drawn fire from numerous delegates. Last week British Ambassador Ivor Richard said the United Nations was no place for a "Wyatt Earp" or a

"King Lear."

Richard did not mention Moynihan by name but his target was obvious.

Saturday night a spokesman for Richard termed "non-sense" a report that the ambassador's comments were made with prior American approval. He said Richard's speech "in no way should be construed as a personal attack" on Moynihan.

The Washington Post reported Moynihan almost resigned because he believed the State Department encouraged the British ambassador to make the statement. But it quoted Kissinger as saying it was "preposterously untrue."

"I urged him to stay. I never had any thought of his leaving," the Post quoted Kissinger as saying. Among the things that antagonized allies and nonaligned nations were Moynihan's descriptions of Ugandan President Idi Amin as a "racist murderer" and the U.N. resolution equating Zionism with racism as an "obscene act."

Lawmakers opinions divided

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in the midst of a 10-day Thanksgiving holiday recess and, typically, Democrats and Republicans are divided in their opinions of what has been done thus far.

When lawmakers return Dec. 1, they still will have to tackle such major issues as energy policy, a tax revision bill and aid for New York. Assistant House Democratic leader John J. McFall says it has compiled a "creative and productive record." McFall's Republican counterpart, Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., claims: "The record of this Congress has not endeared itself to the American people in the elections next year."

Producing a Thanksgiving checklist, the Democrats pointed out that since July 14 the 94th Congress has passed such major programs as a tax cut, emergency jobs bill, a $10 billion housing measure and an extension of jobless benefits. It overrode three big Ford vetoes in the fields of health, education and nutrition.

"You just can't give this Congress those good 'A' marks," countered Michel.

"I can't envision sweeping gains for Republicans next year, but I would predict sizable gains," said Michel without pinpointing numbers. Republicans now hold 115 seats in the House compared to 228 by the Democrats.

McFall predicted that Democrats will increase their House seats to "maybe 300" next year.

Spain entombs Franco

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A new king of Spain looked on for a moment at the funeral of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the man who gave him the crown, then turned to face the world and his problems alone.

day as ruler, led hundreds of thousands of Spaniards in saying farewell Sunday to the man who chose him as his successor but refused to share his one-man rule until his death.

Now, at last, with the 82-year-old Franco in his tomb, the regime of King Juan Carlos I of the Bourbon Dynasty could begin in earnest.

Throng jams Franco burial site gathered in disciplined ranks at the Valley of the Fallen, 36 miles north of Madrid, to stage a dramatic, emotional farewell — as their idol was buried.

Damaged cruiser makes port

PRIOLO, Sicily (UPI) — The U.S. guided missile cruiser Belknap, its superstructure sheared off like a tin can in a fiery collision with an American aircraft carrier, docked safely at dawn today.

But the Belknap's crew raised the Stars and Stripes over the twisted, blackened deck of their crippled cruiser at 8 a.m. — right on traditional Navy schedule.

Four men, three from the Belknap and one from the carrier John F. Kennedy, were killed and 45 others injured in the crash late Saturday in the Ionian Sea. Four Belknap crewmen were missing.

"There was chaos," said Belknap crewman Lt. Com. Rick Foley, 35, of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

"You think of a crash like an auto crash, but this it seemed lasted 15, 30 seconds," he said.

"There was no sudden impact, just shuddering and vibrating, followed by deadly silence then people yelling instructions. There was no panic."

Engineers checking the Belknap's damage said it appeared there had been an engine room explosion. Foley said it appeared jet fuel that spilled from the decks of the Kennedy onto the Belknap had caught fire.

"Everything in the middle part of the ship was on fire," said Mark Haralson of Dallas, a civilian technician aboard the Belknap.

"This is going to be my last cruise," he said as he walked away from the cruiser carrying a fire-ringed suitcase.

Damage estimators who boarded the Belknap said the crew appeared tired and dirty. Some were still stunned by what had happened, they said.

Foley, one of the first crewmen to come ashore, shivered and his teeth chattered as he talked to reporters.

"Yes I am shivering, but it's not the cold," he said.

A crewman from one of the ships that helped tow the Belknap to port said rain had helped put out the fire aboard the cruiser.

A quartet of tug boats towed the Belknap into this deep water port on Sicily's southeast coast. The Kennedy remained in the collision area, about 80 miles to the west, to lead the search efforts.

Members of the first shore party to board the cruiser said the crew told them one man had been crushed by equipment. Two more missing crewmembers were believed to have been buried in the superstructure's collapse, they said.

Engineers making damage estimates said it appeared there was an engine room explosion. Two engine room crewmen were seriously hurt and one suffered minor injuries.

The engineers quoted a chief petty officer as saying, "I was below deck when the accident happened. The area filled with smoke—I had never seen anything like it. On deck, it was just a ball of fire."

Less than 100 of the Belknap's 350-man crew remained on board. Many had transferred to other ships in the crash area before the cruiser reached port.

Lt. Cdr. J. Nuzum of Vermont, V. Va., port liaison officer from the U.S. Navy Supply Depot at nearby Sigonella, said. The superstructure is gone for all practical purposes. The crew is great, beautiful. They really fought for their ship. They want to stay aboard and clean her up.

"The things they want most are laundry and a place to take a shower," he said. "They've rigged up electricity but they have no heat. But it's not cold inside."

A U.S. Navy source said the accident may have been caused by failure of the Belknap's hydraulic steering system.

The Kennedy's angled flight deck sheared off the Belknap's superstructure, including towers on which the vessel's radar and other electronic equipment had been mounted. Only the pilot house was left intact.

The Kennedy, which has a crew of 4,500, was still fully operational although aerial photos showed its underside was badly mangled.

The cruiser, carrying more than 300 crewmen, entered port shortly after 2 a.m. with only one red light showing in its main mast.

It stopped first outside the port entrance, where it was taken in tow. Navy sources said it apparently used the ship to unload its missiles onto the U.S. ammunition ship M. Baker.

Issues top GOP, Demo meets

By United Press International

A dozen Republican governors were in Wichita, Kan., during the weekend discussing what they saw as the issues upon which the 1976 election may turn. Seven Democratic presidential candidates were in Louisville, Ky., doing the same thing.

About 2,000 persons attended the Democratic forum. But on Saturday about an equal number demonstrated outside the convention hall protesting court-ordered busing, an issue not originally on the conference agenda.

An antibusing leader was allowed to address the forum Sunday but got a cool reception. Sen. George McGovern, the party's 1972 presidential candidate, told the delegates that busing — more particularly the issue of integration — is a voter concern most of the Democratic contenders are ignoring.

McGovern, who said he would like to be nominated again if next year's convention is deadlocked, said "all of us should warn any candidate who turns to the tactic of racial division and fear that in convenience we should not support him even if he is the nominee."

Among the candidates present, Sens. Henry Jackson and Lloyd Bentsen said they oppose busing.

The issue varying the Republican governors was the economy. Five of them appeared Sunday on ABC's Issues and Answers and speculated that inflation, high taxes, unemployment and government's inability to deliver quality services could hurt President Ford's chances next year more than any opponent.

Polster Louis Harris told the governors Saturday the public has grown farther apart from its political leaders in recent years. "The split between the public and its leadership has rarely been so wide or deep," he said, pointing to polls showing a sharp drop in Americans' confidence in big business and the presidency.

He also said most voters believe the Republicans are dominated by big business and that its influence on national policy must end.

Nine of the 12 governors at the meeting signed

... integration top issue

a letter of support for President Ford in his battle against Ronald Reagan for the GOP nomination. They were: James Holshouser of North Carolina, William Milliken of Michigan, Robert Ray of Iowa, Otis Bowen of Indiana, Robert Bennett of Kansas, Daniel Evans of Washington, Christopher Bond of Missouri, Jay Hammond of Alaska and Mills Godwin of Virginia.

Govs. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire and James Edwards of South Carolina said they were for Reagan. Arch Moore of West Virginia, a Ford supporter, did not sign because he was chairman of the group.

In other developments:

— Alabama Gov. George Wallace said Saturday night he would not rule out federal aid for New York City if he were president. "It's a political thing to say 'let them go,' but you've got to take into account the consequences of default in the financial capital of the world," he told a meeting of 2,000 North Carolina Jaycees.

— Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who says he is not a candidate, was the preferred candidate of delegates to the Louisville issues conference. An informal survey showed Humphrey the favorite of 172 delegates compared with 166 for Sen. Birch Bayh, 146 for Rep. Morris Udall and 121 for Jimmy Carter. Humphrey did not attend the convention.

— A poll of nearly 1,000 persons attending a Democratic fund-raiser in Waterloo, Iowa, showed Bayh getting about 38 per cent of the votes. Fred Harris about 20 per cent and Jimmy Carter 13 per cent. They were followed in order by Udall, Sargent Shriver, Humphrey, Jackson and Wallace.

Flights rapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb should give up his four-engine Air Force jet flights if he is serious about fuel conservation, Sen. William Proxmire said today.

The Wisconsin Democrat said Zarb was a "wasted waste of energy: fuel and the taxpayers' money" for making charter flight trips around the country at high cost of dollars and fuel in order to admonish the public to save fuel.

Proxmire charged 13 Zarb trips that cost $25,290.42 and consumed 16,900 gallons of fuel in the first 10 months of 1975.

Spokesmen for Zarb's office said that while commercial flights have been available in one direction for Zarb's engagements around the country, it was not always possible for him to make trips and meet other official commitments back in Washington.

Anti-bus measure dealt fatal blow

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The 94th Congress will not advance a Constitutional amendment to abolish busing to achieve school desegregation. Some busing foes joined in dealing the proposal its fatal blow.

Although in recent years the amendment has been attempted in the last three Congresses and there were 25 measures stuck in the House Judiciary Committee when the issue was killed for this two-year session.

Although in recent years the amendment has been attempted in the last three Congresses and there were 25 measures stuck in the House Judiciary Committee when the issue was killed for this two-year session.

Some of the ardent foes of busing for desegregation agreed the Constitution was not the place to settle their dispute with court decisions.

Rep. Walter Flowers of Alabama and James Mann of South Carolina voted to kill the measure to the surprise of some fellow southerners.

A former federal judge, Richardson Preyer of North Carolina, told the caucus he did not like busing as a tool of desegregation but that he liked less amending the Constitution to achieve the desired result.

A discharge petition to force a committee to submit a bill to the floor requires 218 signatures and the number apparently will not be available in the House this session. It appears equally obvious that it is unlikely that busing foes could whip up the required two-thirds vote needed to advance a Constitutional amendment even if the proposal could reach the floor.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter J. Rodino told the caucus "the Constitution stands for this nation as a statement of ideals without parallel. This document stands for the rights of the most democratic, the most free group of human beings the world has ever seen."

Pullout set

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) —

The last U.S. combat aircraft in Thailand will be withdrawn in January, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

The U.S. command said about 50 Phantom jet fighters and other warplanes at Korat air base would leave the country by Jan. 15.

American activities at the Korat base, 135 miles northeast of Bangkok, will end by Feb. 29, the command said.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: This problem is making me physically ill. We live in the suburbs, and my husband works in the city. A bar-type restaurant recently opened near Vic's office that features a "go-go lunch"—complete with nude girls who dance and wait on tables. Vic and several men in his department lunch there daily now.

I am very much upset over this, and Vic knows it, but he makes light of it. He's a hot-blooded Latin, and just the thought of his being aroused by naked girls every day is more than I can bear.

How should I handle this? I've considered meeting him in town for lunches, but the trains don't run at the proper times. Also, I am tied down with small children.

PHILADELPHIA WIFE

MR. AND MRS. W.H. STOCKHAM SR.

Couple observe 50th

WENDELL — Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Stockham Sr. will observe their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Dec. 7 in the Wendell 100F Hall.

Walter H. Stockham and Catherine Louise Howerton were married Dec. 8, 1925, at Grand Junction, Colo. They lived in the Buhl and Castleford areas until 1941, when they moved to Wendell where they have farmed since. They had 13 children, 11 are living. They are Walter Stockham Jr., Vesta Sullia, Robert Stockham and Sally Andrews, all Wendell; Barry and Ronald Stockham, both Gooding; Ava Jean Eller, Coeur d'Alene; Jo Anne Murphy, Twin Falls; Richard Stockham, Caldwell; Sharon Baker, Missoula, Mont.; and Sue Jerke, Jerome. They have 36 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Friends and relatives are invited to the open house. The couple request no gifts.

Exchange student speaks

TWIN FALLS Thanksgiving was the theme at a meeting of the Emano Club at the home of Mrs. E. L. Rayburn, Friday. Ingrid Bodecker, exchange student from Germany, attending Filer High School, told of her new experiences in America. The white elephant gift was won by Ona Turner.

Abby, I don't go out to dinner very often, so it's a special occasion to me, and I like to have my man near me. Sitting next to a stranger at dinner doesn't make me feel very romantic after I get home.

What is your opinion? These people are mostly my husband's business associates.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: Most married people enjoy dinner conversation with someone other than their own spouses. That's the object of socializing. Perhaps you are slightly jealous, possessive or insecure. If so, admit it, and try to overcome it.

How does your husband feel about sitting next to a stranger at dinner? If he enjoys it, I suggest that you learn to enjoy it, too.

'Nude' lunch un-bearable

DEAR PHILLY: What are your alternatives? Ordering your husband to quit going there for lunch? Sorry, but he's a big boy, and you aren't his mother.

I seriously doubt that the girls are nude. (Topless, maybe, but hardly naked at lunchtime.) After the novelty wears off—and it will—all that nudity will become about as exciting as looking at a lot of dressed turkeys hanging in a butcher-shop window.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my nose! I hate it. I am 18 and have a fairly good personality and lots of friends especially at church. But everybody seems to notice my nose, and I think it's high time I did something about it. What really hurts, Abby, is that there's this guy who goes to my church. I like him a lot, but because of my nose he calls me "747."

If you could see my nose, you'd know what I mean. Where can I find a plastic surgeon who wouldn't charge me a fortune? Even the pastor, in a very nice way, told me I had a nose problem. Help!

DEAR "747": If you are convinced that you'll never land a guy with that 747, ask your family doctor if he knows a plastic surgeon who would operate now, and let you make monthly payments.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this in the wastebasket. I must have an answer.

Whenever my husband and I are invited out for dinner, it seems to be the rule that everyone should sit by someone else's spouse. If I ask to sit beside mine, I'm accused of being jealous or possessive.

All we did was take one of the financial tools used by successful businesses and make it available to everyone.

Everyone needs credit -- and uses it.

A prudent use of credit, and money, is what corporate financial officers are all about. It's their reason for being. The credit of a business (and yours too) answers to criteria designed to keep that business healthy, yet free to progress. Soundly managed companies establish lines of credit in the banking world. They know that they can draw on this pre-arranged credit to benefit their business in a number of ways.

Having a line of credit is sound money management and that's just what we've made available to all of our checking customers.

As you may have guessed -- we call it Line-O-Credit.

It's a pre-arranged reserve of money that backs up your checking account and is available for use when you can use it best.

Just call for an application that you may take home and fill out in about five minutes -- privately.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
What part, if any, does anger play in physical or mental health? It seems to me a person who cannot go through one day of his life without getting angry about one thing or another must be doing some harm to himself.

Even little things that go wrong for me are major catastrophes. Am I harming myself physically? — M.H.

Yes, indeed, in anger, the hypothalamus is immediately activated, sending signals throughout the sympathetic nervous system. It has been shown that under such conditions blood vessels actually become constricted—with blood being diverted to muscles. This is thought to have been part of primitive man's defense mechanism in response to real physical dangers about him.

health in treating bodily ills

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a widow. I lost my husband more than 10 years ago. I have had six children and have worked hard to raise them. I never remarried, but I have met a nice man just my age, who has asked me to marry him.

I would take the chance, but for the problem I have. I have trouble with uterine prolapse. Would this interfere or be damaging for me? I don't have trouble with bleeding. I am 50 years old. I think the marriage would work, and that we could get along well. Please advise. — M.B.

The damage has already been done in bearing six children and apparently experiencing hard labor with each. No further damage can occur from sexual relations. I suggest you marry this nice gentleman and end your concern about the prolapse.

Body and mind harmful by anger

For the chronically emotionally upset, modern man the result can be hypertension. This would apply to anger whether vented or suppressed.

In fact, such emotions as anger activate the entire network of endocrine glands. The body is caused in excess secretions. One result can be an increase in blood cholesterol and secretion of insulin with all the attendant problems this can bring.

There is an excellent discussion of this subject in a book published not too many years ago, "Type A Behavior and Your Heart," by two medical doctors, Meyer Friedman and Ray H. Roseman.

From your brief description, you may fit into the "type A" category, and you may need help, not only for mental and physical health. One of the best descriptions of mental health I have read refers to it as "getting along with oneself and with others in a constructive, satisfying way."

I suggest you contact a mental health organization in your locality. There are many worthwhile organizations devoted to self-help for people like yourself. Doctors today are giving greater significance in the role of mental

If it bothers you, why don't you visit a doctor, explain your situation, and ask him for advice? He can suggest various methods to reduce the problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Are you familiar with a disease involving deterioration of the ligaments that affect the left side, arm, hand, etc., and where the only cure is removal of a rib?

To me, this is unbelievable. Yet this is what my niece has undergone. Would you please tell me if such a thing is possible? — Mrs. C.R.W.

You had better start being a believer.

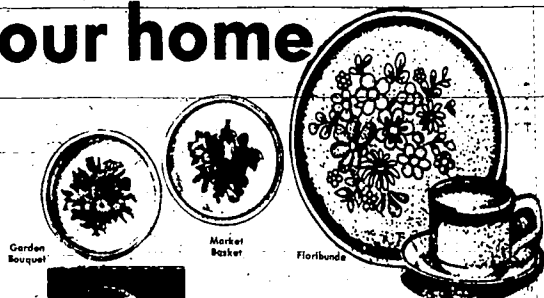

This is done in what is called the thoracic outlet syndrome. In this, an unusually large projection (not a rib) forms on the side of one of the neck vertebrae. Since it occurs on the "cervical spine" portion of the body (that is, in the neck area) the projection is sometimes called a "cervical rib." This is what is removed.

These growths can put pressure on nerve roots as well as arteries in the area. The pressure can cause pain and muscle deterioration in areas of the body served by these structures.

caused some stimulated conversation when played in a rubber bridge game in Wisconsin.

Jim: "This is the sort of hand with which you and I might well get to six, as would almost any expert partnership. It is a trap hand and only some confirmed underbidders would stay out of the trap."

Oswald: "There are lots of ways to bid it. However, in the actual bidding South had no reason to use Blackwood. He should have simply bid five or six spades over his partner's four-spade bid. Finding about aces did not help him."

Our Wisconsin reader asked specifically about the four-spade bid. Our answer is that we might not have responded two diamonds, but if we had made that bid we would surely have gone to four spades over South's four clubs.

Designer perfects electronic walls

BY JASON THOMAS
Chicago Sun-Times

Sometimes David Winfield Wilson likes to go home at night, lower the lights and watch the wallpaper.

But first, he has to turn on the wall.

Wilson, the San Francisco-based wall covering designer, thinks he has just about perfected the latest innovation in the wall-covering field—electronic walls.

Wilson starts with a plain white wall and a projector. He slips slides into the projector. Suddenly, the wall is flooded with a blowup of a sink filled with bubbles, the rooftops of Paris or a smiling alligator.

"I can be anything," Wilson said. "And the wonderful part is that you can change the wall as often as you want. You can even use your own slides of a nice vacation or some special experience you recorded on film."

Sounds nice, doesn't it? But the technique is not nearly perfected.

At present, the projector has to be mounted across the room from the wall, which means that anything between the beam of light and the wall creates a shadow. Also, the room cannot be very bright, which limits the projected walls to dark corners or nighttime.

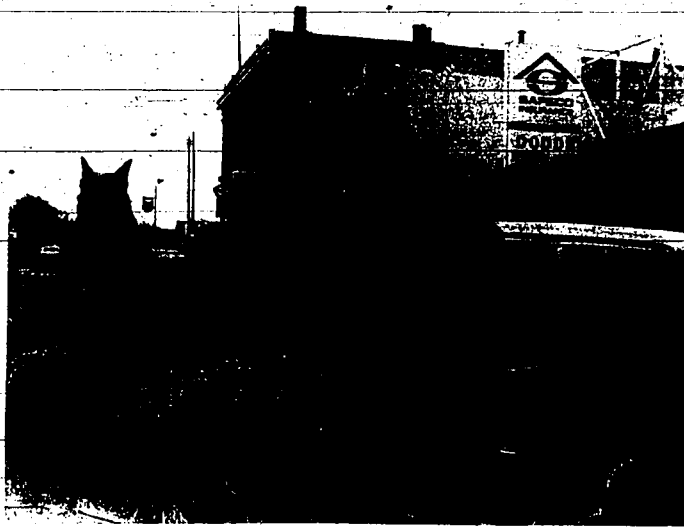

Wilson is sure he will overcome these setbacks.

"I have been working for two years with an optical company to perfect a ceiling-mounted projector, and I think it will be ready for the market in two or three years," he predicted. "I was approached last year by a firm which has devised a basic system to project visual images through the use of sound frequency, rather than optically."

Wilson prefers to talk about the creative side—rather than the technical side—and his new decorating method. He already has created co-ordinated slide series that seem to flow from wall to wall, on such subjects as Swiss cheese, Alka Seltzer, a home street and a utility meter.

"Just think about the possibilities for changing the mood of your rooms with a flick of the switch," he said. "You could have a pattern, you could have a plant color, you could have compositions of light."

Soil erosion bill sought

HAILEY — The Soil Conservation Districts of Idaho will try to get a soil erosion and sediment control bill through the state legislature this year.

In a unanimous show of strength, 36 districts attending an awards conference last week voted to support a statewide resolution which will regulate topsoil erosion.

A similar bill two years ago failed to get out of committee in the house. No bill was introduced in the 1973 legislature.

Every state agency and all private individuals will come under the purview of the state's 31 local soil conservation districts if a bill is passed.

The purpose of the bill is to control and conserve the topsoil resource of the state and to press for conservation practices on farms and in cities, according to Lee Pattison, assistant director of the state district association.

Under the terms of the bill any individual, group or agency who sees a farmer or other agency causing needless erosion of soil may file a complaint with the local district.

The district then is responsible for investigation of the complaint and making recommendations to stop the erosion.

A failure to comply with the recommendation of the district could result in the intervention of the Department of Health and Welfare, an agency with authority to file a court action, Pattison said.

The bill would provide also for protection to state waters, including surface and underground sources.

Each district will be responsible for preparing its own local soil conservation guidelines if the bill is passed, Pattison said.

If those guidelines are not being met, and no approved plan for erosion or sediment control exists that land operator must agree to certain regulations or cease the disturbing activity, according to a draft of the bill.

Pattison did not know if the bill would apply to federal agencies, such as the U.S. Forest Service or Bureau of Land Management because of the jurisdiction federal agencies claim.

He said an attempt will probably be made to introduce the bill in one of the resource committees, but said he does not know how much chance the bill has of passing any of the legislative bodies.

Ski season under way

SKIING got off to a good start at Valley resorts Ponderosa and Sun Valley this weekend. Snow-making machines and early storms meant enough snow on the Warm Springs side of Baldy Mountain in Ketchum for lifts to open there Saturday. At top, a young skier takes a rest. A stack of skis, below, shows many people were eager to begin the winter season.

Incumbents dominate ballots

RUPERT — Rural fire districts seldom have too many candidates for their boards of directors.

This year's elections in the Mini-Cassia area are no exception. Incumbents dominate the ballots without challenges for the Dec. 1 elections.

In the Minidoka County Fire District, only incumbents in the two subdistricts up for election filed petitions by Friday's deadline.

They were Vern Montgomery, a longtime member of the district board, and Dale Child, appointed to succeed Bert Stevenson when he moved out of the district.

The election will be from noon to 8 p.m. Dec. 1 at Minico High School.

Only subdistrict No. 3 has a sent up for election in the North Cassia Rural Fire District.

Incumbent Harry Berg filed the only petition for that subdistrict by Friday's 5 p.m. deadline.

The election will be from 12 noon to 7 p.m. at the Deco City Hall on Dec. 1.

At Malta, there were no petitions filed for seats from subdistricts No. 1 and 2, which are up for election.

Board Secretary Dale Pierce, from subdistrict No. 1, said both he and Dan Whitaker, incumbent in subdistrict No. 2, had agreed to run "if no one else does anything."

Cigarette cost increase seen

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley cigarette smokers can prepare to dig a little deeper to pay for their habit.

Prices will rise as much as five cents a pack in some area vending machines, in the next few weeks and probably one or two cents in over-the-counter sales.

The increases reflect the price hikes of six to nine per cent in wholesale prices by all major tobacco firms the past 10 days. According to the New York Times, the latest round of manufacturer increases, the first in more than a year, is attributed by the tobacco firms to higher costs, which were not identified.

Cleo Shorthouse, manager of Hommeway and Mover Co., a Twin Falls wholesale firm, said this morning "Effective today prices are up, but at less than 2 cents a pack at the wholesale level." He said this will mean 20 cents for the 10 pack cartons.

Shorthouse said he would not expect retail prices to raise much more than two cents a pack in over-the-counter sales.

Western Music Co., which operates several hundred cigarette vending machines throughout Magic Valley, will increase prices from 20 to 25 cents "within the next two to three weeks," according to Larry Mahler, owner. He said in "some isolated locations" the price would be 30 cents per pack.

In some places like Nevada, vending machine prices already are 60 cents and these presumably will go to 65 cents, Mahler said.

Hertlbaum, of Valley Vending, said he is going to absorb the price increase as long as the cost is "only about a penny a pack." His vending machines will continue to charge 50 cents per pack.

The two firms handle 90% of all vending machines in the valley.

Managers of three major supermarkets in Twin Falls agreed the increases of the tobacco firms will be passed on to customers. Price of most brands in such stores now is about 29 cents a pack, according to Roger Jones, manager of Bluff's.

He said: "We have the option to raise the price if we feel we have to. If competition allows me to 'make the increase' I will."

John Nance, K mart manager, said: "As soon as we are notified of the hike, our prices will go up." He said his store has only raised prices on cigarettes twice in the two years since it opened in Twin Falls.

The Albertsons manager, Larry Fullmer, said he will raise prices "when and how much Bosc tells me," since that direction comes from the chain's Boise office.

Vendor Shorthouse said this morning he has now heard from all the major tobacco firms of the price hike.

The increases began Nov. 7 when American Brands Inc. raises its price 1 cent a pack without announcement. Four days later the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corp. increased prices by 1.5 cents. Philip Morris, Inc. followed with a 1.5 cent increase a few days later.

R. J. Reynolds Industries, the largest manufacturer, refused to say "whether it is planning similar increases."

The wire service says one industry expert explained that traditionally when companies representing more than half the market raise their prices, the others always follow. Conversely, he said, if only one company raises its price, the others can force a rollback.

Teacher bargaining bill 'not needed'

TWIN FALLS — Although a collective bargaining bill for public employees received support from Idaho teachers Saturday in Boise, Twin Falls School Board Chairman Dr. Howard Hunt today said members of his panel don't see a need for such legislation at this time.

"We feel that what we have now is adequate," Hunt said. An agreement made with Twin Falls teachers early this summer hasn't been tested in contract talks, he added.

"We really haven't had it long enough to see if it's going to work."

The Twin Falls panel is "a rather broad agreement to discuss many things that are problems and to negotiate these," Hunt said. The "main thing" in the agreement is a "time limit," he said, providing for issuance of contracts if negotiations have not been completed by May 15.

A collective bargaining bill for public employees was the primary topic of discussion Saturday at the Idaho Education Association's Legislative Delegate Assembly in Boise.

IEA Executive Secretary Wayne York told the teachers a coalition of public employee groups intends to support a public employee bargaining bill similar to House Bill 78, which failed in the last session of the Idaho legislature.

The assembly voted to reduce the bill's cooling-off period from 60 days to 15 days before initiating a strike and to delete the word "limited" from the phrase "right to strike." The delegates agreed passage of the bill was their top priority.

Phil East, president of the Twin Falls

Education Association, which represents most teachers in the district, could not be reached this morning for comment on his group's role in the meeting Saturday.

The second resolution passed by the assembly provides that 40 per cent of all new general fund revenue be allocated to public schools. The association estimated the new revenue will total $43 million in fiscal year 1976.

In other resolutions, the delegates voted to:

- Support a public school fund increase from all sources of $26.2 million; $11.2 of which would be for cost of living salary increases. Part of the resolution asked for no less than a 17.9 per cent salary increase for teachers.

- Ask the National Education Association to cease its efforts to get gun control legislation enacted.

- Reduce the 67 per cent majority required for passage of bond and facility levies.

- Provide for equalized state funding of education, with continued local control.

- Call for more federal funding of education accompanied by more flexibility in local administration of federal programs.

- Start and support a public relations campaign to improve the image of public schools and the Idaho teacher.

- Put future general fund surpluses into the public school endowment fund or a new state public school construction fund.

- Support State Superintendent of Public Instruction Roy Truby's efforts on behalf of education, particularly in the transfer of $713,000 in liquor funds to public schools.

Minidoka plant study set

ACEQUIA — The first power plant ever constructed by the Bureau of Reclamation has cleared committee in Congress.

The Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee has approved legislation authorizing the secretary of interior to investigate rebuilding or replacing the Minidoka Power Plant.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said his measure would authorize a study expected to take 18 months and cost up to $300,000. The bill now goes to the floor of the Senate and House.

The construction project is now feasible in the study, is estimated to cost $12.8 million.

The current plant has the capacity of 15,500 kilowatts.

It would be replaced by a new plant, south toward Blanchard Falls. The new plant would have a capacity of 26,000 kilowatts.

The dam was completed in 1906 and the first water released for irrigation in June, 1907.

The first five electrical generation units went into operation in 1909 as the first power plant ever constructed by the Bureau of Reclamation.

The five electrical units had the generating capacity of 7,500 kilowatts and provided power for three irrigation lifts near Declo.

A sixth unit raised the capacity to 10,000 kilowatts in 1926. The final unit was installed in 1940.

The plant provides electricity for all the Minidoka areas except Oakley, with excess power being sold to Bonneville Power Administration.

The peak electric load in summer is 110 kilowatt hours, but the power plant can provide only 15 per cent of that.

The dam is kept full in the summer during the irrigation season. It has a spillway 4,700 feet long, backing water 12 miles to form Lake Walcott. The lake has active storage of 96,000 acre feet.

Gem jury eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell is going to ask the next session of the legislature to establish a statewide grand jury to counteract "white collar and sophisticated crime."

At present, Idaho has a constitutional provision for county grand juries but no provision — constitutional or statutory — for a statewide grand jury.

Rupert seeks final OK on sewer system

RUPERT — Only the Secretary of Interior stands between Rupert and final approval of its proposed sewer lagoon system.

The Bureau of Land Management has overruled protests by some land owners in the area surrounding the lagoon site north of Rupert.

BLM State Director William L. Mathews notified the Minidoka County Planning Commission during the past week that property owner protests have been dismissed.

Mathews said: "Information presented by the protesters does not lead us to believe that the classification of the lands, as proposed, is in error or that use of the land as a sewage treatment site is not in the public interest."

A petition with about 80 names had been presented to the bureau in October protesting location of the lagoon. The petition was circulated by Donald L. Kester, a Rupert realtor, a longtime opponent of the system.

The petition listed 11 reasons for opposition to the lagoons. It contended that the land would be valuable for farming, was too far removed from Rupert, would create pollution hazards, would be competition with use of the treated water and was contrary to the Northside Pumping Division advisory committee's recommendation.

The decision will be final if not overruled by the Secretary of Interior within 30 days.

Danny Fouldpour of the consulting engineer firm of Hamilton & Voeller told the city in early October that the protest had been lodged. It already has cost a 30-day delay in plans for construction of the system.

Fouldpour said a contract could be let by July 1, 1976, if there are no further delays. Design work is expected to be completed by the end of May.

Construction is estimated to take 200 working days, with the plant in operation by the summer of 1977.

The lagoon site covers more than 1,000 acres of land about five miles north of the existing effluent treatment plant for the city.

The land is now under the Bureau of Reclamation and must be transferred to the Bureau of Land Management for administration. It is now used for limited grazing and soil is considered poor and rocky. The city's project calls for construction at a cost of more than $4 million, with the federal government paying 75 per cent and the state 15 per cent on the aeration basin and lagoon system. The remainder would be covered by the city with industry making a strong contribution for its heaviness of the system.

The choice was made over two other alternatives after a full study of the city's sewer problems. It was chosen to eliminate any effluent going into the Snake River, thus avoiding any environmental degradation.

Plans are eventually to use the water from the lagoon system for irrigation of cropland.

today in brief

Burglars hit TF homes, firms

TWIN FALLS — Burglars were busy in Twin Falls over the weekend.

Beneficial Finance Co., at 338 Hike Lakes Boulevard North was entered between 10:30 a.m. Sunday and 7:30 a.m. today. A locked file cabinet containing an undetermined amount of cash was taken. Entry was gained through a main door on the south side of the building. Damage to the door was estimated at $300.

A burglary at Wilson Bates Appliance Store on Main Avenue North was reported to Twin Falls police at 8:20 a.m. today. An investigation report was not available early this morning.

The home of Diane Matthews, 444 4th Avenue East, was entered between 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:20 p.m. Sunday. A color TV set and camera valued at $450 were taken.

Book fair results posted

SUBSIDIARY — Participation in a second annual book fair by students and patrons of the Shoshone Lincoln Elementary School recently showed 450 books sold in all and $91 cleared for the school.

Mrs. Janice Kerner, media specialist at the school, said the $91 has been spent to purchase around the world story cassettes, two cassette players and $20 worth of books for the library.

Mrs. Charles Hasler was director of mothers who handled the sale. Other mothers assisting included Mrs. David Porter, Mrs. Melvin Laraway, Mrs. Don Stimpson, Mrs. Betty Kelton and Mrs. Lynn Williams.

Mrs. Kerner said the books come from the Educational Reading Service, New Jersey.

She expressed thanks to all patrons who supported the project.

MDA extends services

TWIN FALLS — Myasthenia gravis, a chronic, progressively weakening neuromuscular disease, has been added to the neuromuscular disorders encompassed by free patient and community service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Leland J. Bard, MDA director for Oregon and Southern Idaho says the free services offered are possible through the generous response of the American public to the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

Myasthenia gravis affects the muscles of eye movement, facial expression, chewing, swallowing and respiration in the early stages, Bard says. Later, it sends to the neck, trunk and limb muscles may become involved leading to increasing disability.

Many can be helped by medication, Bard says, but there is no cure.

Man arrested

TWIN FALLS — Michael Barrera, 21, was arrested by Twin Falls city police at 11:45 p.m. Friday following a high speed chase through the east area of the city.

Police reported the chase began when a car passed a police vehicle on Locust Street, allegedly driving at a high rate of speed. During the chase, police reports stated, the driver ran several stop signs.

Barrera was arrested in the Smith's Food King parking lot and charged with reckless driving.

Jerome banquet slated tonight

JEROME — Magic Valley Junior Charitable Association will sponsor its annual recognition banquet at 7 p.m. today at Wood Cafe.

Gene Gibson, University of Idaho livestock specialist, will be the guest speaker. He will discuss tips on "How to select a show animal and nutrition and your show animal."

His speech will be followed by a live demonstration scheduled for 7 p.m. Dec. 1 at the Filer Fairgrounds pavilion.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — The uncertainties over the resolution of New York City's financial crisis outweighed some favorable economic news Monday as prices drifted lower in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Wall Street uncertainty turned to dismay when the New York state legislature delayed action over the weekend on a rescue plan for the city. Minority groups blocked passage of a tax package which sponsors hoped would prompt some sort of federal aid from Washington.

Government reports, meanwhile, showed the economic recovery was proceeding although it might not be as rapid as some had hoped. April Friday showed durable goods rose 7.3 percent in October, following a slide the month before. A 0.7 percent jump in the Consumer Price Index showed inflation is gathering factor, however.

Meanwhile, some interest rates, continuing a recent trend, moved lower. Prime Manhattan trimmed its prime rate a quarter point to 7 1/2 percent. Trendsetting First National City Bank of New York lowered its key rate Friday to 7 percent.

Against this mixture of news, the Dow Jones industrial average, a 275 point loser Friday, was off 220 points to 838.56 shortly before noon EST. The average lost 12.91 points last week.

Investor uncertainty was reflected in the market's breadth figures. Of the 1,560 issues crossing the tape, 600 declined, 489 advanced and 463 remained unchanged.

Turnover during the first two hours amounted to about 5,400,000 shares, compared with 5,940,000 traded during the same period Friday.

Chromalloy American lost 1 1/2 to 10 and Missouri Portland Cement and H.K. Porter were delayed in opening.

Rain or snow showers likely

Twin Falls, Northdale, Burley, Rupert Area: Cloudy through Tuesday with an increasing chance of rain or snow showers tonight. Colder Tuesday. Highs near 30 Tuesday in the 20s and lower 30s. Overnight lows will be mostly in the 20s. The outlook for Wednesday, colder.

Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower

Wood River Valley: Mostly cloudy tonight. Increasing chance of snow showers late this afternoon, tonight and Tuesday. Colder Tuesday. Highs near 30 Tuesday. Overnight lows in the low 20s. The outlook for Wednesday, colder.

Synopsis: A high pressure system is building over Idaho today, at the surface and aloft. This is resulting in air stagnation in the lower valleys. A direct result has been dense fog in the Treasure and Snake River valleys.

Minor disturbances have been moving across the top of the high pressure system, causing most of the cloudiness in the Magic Valley area and scattered snow showers in the mountains.

The extended outlook for Wednesday through Friday calls for mostly dry, except for a chance of showers in the mountains and eastern portion of southern Idaho. Highs will be mostly in the 20s with lows in the teens and 20s.

Predator effort

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Saturday told the Wyoming Wool Growers Convention the sheep industry must get immediate help to deal with predator losses.

McGee said sheep production has been on a steady decline for the last several years. In Wyoming the number of sheep has dropped from 1.9 million in 1966 to 1.2 million, he said.

Due primarily to predator losses, the Wyoming sheep industry lost about 40 percent of its producers in the last decade, the senator said. "It is because of this decline, and economic losses being suffered by the industry that we need immediate relief from present administration practices and restrictions."

The Environmental Protection Agency in 1972 banned the interstate shipment of three kinds of predator control chemicals, including sodium cyanide. A federal judge in Cheyenne issued a temporary injunction last June requiring the EPA to prepare an impact statement on the ban, but an appeals court later overturned the decision. "Saying the EPA was not required to prepare a statement," McGee said a report will soon come to his Agriculture Appropriations Committee with up-to-date statistics on predator losses in the wool industry. A preliminary announcement by the Economic Research Service indicated substantial sheep losses, verifying producer reports blaming predators for most of the losses, he said.

Telephone system projects planned

RUPERT People who objected to adding two digits to their local dialing may get some consolation from elimination of a digit on long distance dialing after the first of the year.

Project Mutual Telephone Co. plans to add new equipment units direct distance dialing system that will eliminate need for the second number to keep people into the long distance dialing system of the Bell System.

Wes Kramer discussed telephone company renovations Thursday before the Rupert Chamber of Commerce and the Project Mutual serves Minidoka County except for Heyburn and North Burley.

He listed the new direct distance dialing equipment among additions to be made to the system. He also said that a microwave system is to be installed for mobile units and the company is contemplating another channel to serve more mobile phones.

A five-year project now is being engineered that will add another 3,300 cable pairs to the outside plant.

The phone company completed installation of an electronic center last month that can receive a call and store the numbers dialed until that number is completed.

Previous to that time, customers could dial most local numbers with only the last five digits. Kramer explained that the seven digits are now necessary because the electronic center will not recognize a number of less than seven digits.

But Kramer said the advantages of the new system far outweigh the old.

He said the company now has two routes for toll calls. The old one to Twin Falls handles all such calls in the Magic Valley area. Calls to other areas are routed through Boise.

The new electronic center will accept both rotary and touch tone calls. Kramer said an original problem that touch tone calls from 5-6 miles out of Rupert could not be made has been eliminated.

The electronic center eliminates holding up lines during partial long distance calls that are not completed. The digits are stored until the number is completed and the call recognized by the center before the call slices on a line.

Kramer said the center also offers pulse correction that regenerates a number from a worn dial and can put it through a bad switch. He said the combination of a worn dial and a bad switch previously would cause a wrong number.

The new direct distance dialing equipment will be installed after Jan. 1. Kramer said that, in combination with the electronic center, it would recognize the caller without use of a second number.

Current long distance dialing required a number in the 20s. Only the 5 will be necessary with the new equipment.

The microwave system on mobile units will replace the present system, which puts a call through land and then is relayed over land lines to the sending station.

Kramer said the company has 56 mobile units in service on four channels the 50 megawatt band, which is quite full.

He said the company has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for another channel, this one on the 450 megawatt band. He said it would take about 18 months, but would provide another 25-50 mobile units.

Kramer said that many are now on a waiting list for mobile units.

Kramer told chamber members that the cables buried two years ago now are filled and the company is using electronic equipment to add stations in some areas.

He said the central office units last disconnected terminals. An electronic sender is being installed that can move to another level, offering another 1,000 numbers.

Kramer said the company now has 8,200 phones at 5,200 stations. It is adding 25-30 stations a month with a monthly average of 33 new phones installed.

Benefit planned

MRS. Maria Bolton, who lost her husband and small son in a fire, looks over list of names of committee members who are working on a country music benefit show to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 8 at the Gooding High School. Willis Cheney, coordinator for the show, outlines the list for Mrs. Bolton. Mrs. Kathy Ugalde, Shoshone, is in charge of the show program that will feature a number of area country music bands. The public is invited.

Big firms seek managers

Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — The nation's biggest corporations are beginning to look for marketing and production managers and that should be good news for most people.

Lester Korn, president of Korn-Ferry International said, "There's usually a six to 12-month lag between such executive searches and its effect on employment." Korn said. His company specializes in finding executives for corporations.

Korn noted that searches for marketing and production persons is one leg of the three-legged stool of economic recovery. The other two legs are the end of layoffs and the recall of persons who have been laid off.

Thus far in this recovery, the massive layoffs have ended for the most part, Korn said. The next phase is calling back laid off workers.

He believes that at this point in the recovery, business executives are more optimistic than consumers. "Consumer confidence today is up, but that's over severely depressed levels. Confidence still isn't as strong as it was two years ago," he said.

One matter that is holding back executives in their expansion-planning is the New York City crisis.

Land saver invented

TAMS, W.Va. (UPI) — Veteran coal miners C.E. Tipper and his son, John, say they have invented a system to dig coal from mountainsides without tearing up the landscape.

The problem is, nobody is beating a path to their door.

The Tippers call their technique the "longwall" process. Basically, it entails a special, pivoting assembly invented by the elder Tipper.

The assembly is fastened to a cable strung around a coal-laden mountain and attached to a hoist.

Coal is taken out by allowing the assembly to slice its spokes into the seam in a side-to-side manner, much in the fashion of a man sawing down a tree.

"You start from a point and bring everything with you," the older Tipper explained. "You don't tear the country up in the process."

A few weeks ago, the Tippers set up shop on a mountain peak at Page in neighboring Fayette County. Before long, they had removed about 60 tons of coal.

But federal inspectors from the U.S. Bureau of Mines appeared on the scene, took a look at the 70-foot high wall and declared it unsafe. The experiment ground to a halt.

That left the Tippers fledgling Point Mining Co. in limbo. Its machinery is still there, collecting dust.

US duty required on expensive gifts

Newhouse News Service
NEW YORK — It's still a little early for Santa Claus, but if you intend to do your Christmas shopping overseas, there are some things you should know before you mail presents to friends and relatives back in this country.

According to the U.S. Customs Service, if the gift you mail is unsolicited and its fair retail value is $10 or under, you do not have to pay U.S. duty on it.

We got this information from a free leaflet put out by the Customs Service. The leaflet is called "A Gift Are You Sure?" and you can get a copy by writing to: U.S. Customs Service, P.O. Box 7118, Washington, D.C. 20511.

If the retail value of the gift is more than $10, you do have to pay duty — but the duty is figured on the wholesale value of the article.

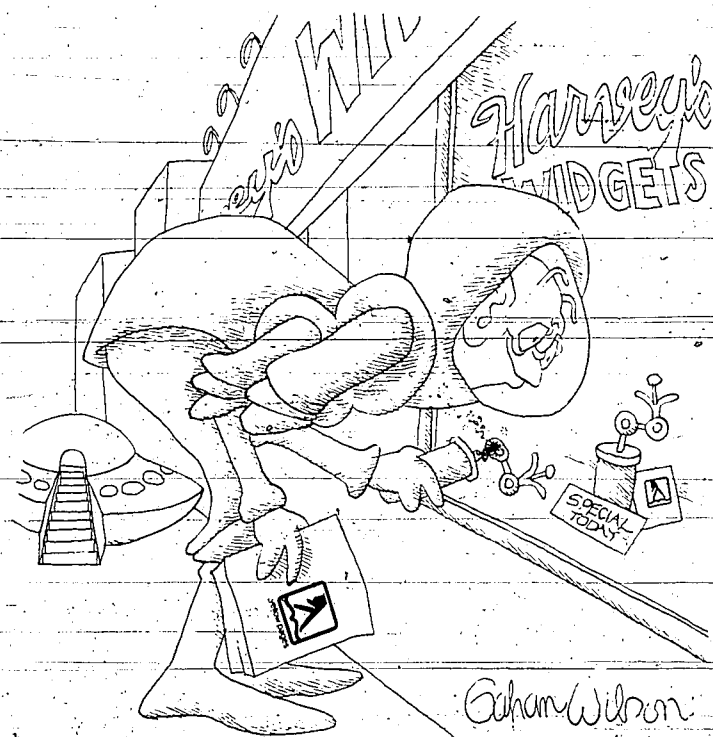

Also, the Customs Service reports, you can send gifts for more than one person in one consolidated package, as long as they are individually wrapped and labeled with the name of the individuals who are to receive them.

And talk to each other. It's one of life's best moments. And when you take ten, take Ten. It's smooth enough for her, with the true bourbon flavor you like. So try some.

Ten High's value has made it America's third best-selling bourbon.

Raiders nip Redskins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Blanda redeemed himself by kicking a 27-yard field goal after 7:13 of sudden death overtime Sunday to provide the Oakland Raiders with a 26-21 National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins.

The 48-year-old veteran had missed from 31 yards out with five seconds remaining in the fourth period to send the game into overtime.

In the extra period, the Raiders got possession on their own 41 when Mike Bragg's punt for the Redskins slipped off his foot and traveled only 10 yards. Ken Stabler threw key passes of 26 yards to Fred Biletnikoff and 18 yards to Cliff Branch to reach the Washington seven.

After a loss of three yards on a running play, Oakland brought in Blanda on second down and the veteran lofted the game-winner.

The loss dropped Washington two games off the National Football Conference Eastern Division pace set by the St. Louis Cardinals and a game behind the Dallas Cowboys. The Redskins are 6-4, while Oakland is 8-2.

Pete Banaszak's three first-half touchdowns boosted the Raiders to an 11-point halftime lead, but the Redskins fought back to tie the contest in the fourth period, 21-21, and were kept alive by Blanda's miss.

Hawks outlast 76ers

ATLANTA (UPI) — Guard Tom Henderson hung in a desperate 22-footer with three seconds left Sunday to lead Atlanta to a 115-111 win over Philadelphia and the lead in the NBA Central Division.

Henderson held a faltering Atlanta team together down the stretch of the nationally televised game, scoring 11 of the Hawks' last points and keeping the 76ers off balance with his passing and ball handling.

Eight straight points midway through the first quarter shut the Hawks out to a 31-24 first period lead. Atlanta expanded on that effort with a 17-5 blitz of Philadelphia late in the second quarter and took a 26-21 lead into the half.

Messersmith hearing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The arbitration hearing of pitcher Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers continues Monday before impartial arbitrator Peter M. Seitz, the same man who ruled in favor of Jim "Catfish" Hunter in his contract dispute with the Oakland A's last year.

Messersmith, a 19-game winner last season, played the entire campaign without a signed contract and is seeking to gain his unconditional release on the grounds that he had not signed a contract for should be declared free from baseball's controversial reserve clause.

Messersmith is being represented by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and attorney Richard Moss.

Baseball's defense is being handled by John J. Gaberle. The two sides met Friday, but adjourned without finishing their arguments. Seitz, after listening to the arguments for both sides, said he would review the case for about a month before making his decision.

In the Hunter case last year, Seitz ruled that the A's had violated Hunter's contract and declared the pitcher a free agent. Hunter then signed a multi-year contract with the New York Yankees.

Sandra Haynie wins again

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Sandra Haynie tapped in a short putt on the second hole of sudden death Sunday to beat out Pat Bradley in the $40,000 Greater Fort Myers Classic and win her second tourney in two weeks.

Miss Haynie and Miss Bradley each had a one-over par 72 over the final 18 holes to finish regulation play with a three-day total of 210.

They halved the first hole of sudden death. On the second hole, Miss Bradley was trapped on her second shot. She blasted out 25 feet from the pin and two-putted for a bogey five.

Miss Haynie, just short of the green with her second shot, chipped it to within six inches and sank the putt for the victory.

The $5,000 first prize put Miss Haynie's earnings for the year at $63,000. Last week, the 35-year-old San Diego golfer captured the Jacksonville Open and Sunday's win was her fourth of the year.

New York drops Utah

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Julius Erving scored 31 points and Tim Bessett grabbed 17 rebounds Sunday to lead the New York Nets to a 113-106 victory over the Utah Stars.

Erving, who had 17 points in the first half, scored 12 points in the third period as the Nets went from a seven-point halftime lead to take an 86-67 lead after three quarters.

In the fourth quarter, Utah scored two consecutive three-point field goals to close the gap to 109-100 with 1:58 to play, but that was as close as the Stars could come until the end.

Kim Hughes scored 16 points for the Nets, while Brian Taylor added 15. Ron Boone led the Stars with 24 points.

Nebraska takes bid

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The Cornhuskers are tied with Georgia Tech with six straight bowl victories, starting with the Sun Bowl in 1969.

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne described his team as "competitors" who wanted to play one more game.

The Fiesta Bowl will be held Dec. 26 at Tempe, Ariz. Nebraska, the Big Eight co-champion and 10-1 for the season, will play the winner of this Saturday's Arizona-Arizona State game.

A week ago the team rejected a Fiesta Bowl bid to concentrate on the upcoming Oklahoma game. The Sooners' victory earned them the Orange Bowl bid and left the Cornhuskers without a post-season game.

"I'm really pleased that the players felt they wanted to play in the Fiesta Bowl," Osborne said. "We're also very happy that the Fiesta Bowl held open their offer after we voted not to go (to Tempe) before the Oklahoma game."

Nebraska will be making its seventh straight bowl appearance and could become the first team in collegiate history to win seven straight post-season games.

Soviets win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Soviet National Team defeated the University of Pennsylvania, 89-62, Saturday night to win its third straight victory on its U.S. tour.

Vladimir Tkachenko led the Soviet team with 10 points followed by three of his teammates who had nine points each and two others who scored eight apiece.

The Soviets are now 7-5 in their American tour.

year on the LPGA tour, tying her with Carol Mann for most tourney wins this year.

It was the first sudden playoff for Miss Bradley and she said "It was nerve-racking."

Miss Haynie, a 15-year veteran of the tour, acknowledged, "Playoffs are never pleasant, especially the first one. I know this was Pat Bradley's first playoff but it should be a plus for her from now on."

Miss Bradley, 24, of Westford, Mass., won $4,170 for finishing second in the event. Miss Mann finished three shots behind her, with a final round 70 for a 213 total, as did Susie McAllister, who shot a final round 72.

Louise Bruce, who will be 22 on Wednesday, had another cause for celebration Sunday when she fired a 166-yard hole in one on the seventh hole. Miss Bruce, who used a four iron for the shot, had taken a four on the par-three hole the two previous days of play. She had a final round 75 for a 224 total.

Also finishing at 224 in a tie for 30th place was defending champion Bonnie Bryant, who fired a 76 Sunday.

You've heard of that innocuous sugar pill known as the "placebo," but did you know that in Latin it means "I will please"? Studies at Cornell University indicate the placebo pill seems to do its job better, if it's either pink or blue. And it works even more spectacularly, if it's mottled.

PLEASE NOTE. Sir Isaac Newton ranks No. 468 on our list of the world's most bashful men. So shy was Sir Isaac that friends had to beg, bluff and bamboozle him into publishing details of his most valuable discoveries.

THE AVERAGE WOMAN'S thigh tape-measures one and a quarter inches greater than the average man's.

REMARRIAGE. Q: "How many of those husbands and wives who get divorced remarry each other?" A: Figure about 10,000 a year in this country.

UNDERSTAND a Louisiana grower now routinely is turning out two-pound tomatoes. Excellent, excellent.

CAN YOU NAME those three states in which there are towns officially known as "Romance"? How about those eight states with towns called "Paradise"?

IF YOU GET yourself a shrimp that's more than one year old, you've got an elderly shrimp, senator. One year is an exceedingly ripe old age for a shrimp. In fact, a year is the shrimp's traditional life cycle.

WHISTLING. The whistled language of Gomera has not been in the news lately. Pity. Legend reports that certain Africans once had their tongues cut out. Why remains unknown. They floated on rafts to an island in the Canaries. And there they allegedly invented a whistling language which was most convenient for the lonely goat ropers on the hillsides. It's said to be translatable into Spanish.

WHY DO SOME whales commit suicide? That's what I asked. Now a kindly client of scientific mind says that has been answered. Dr. James Glen Mead of the Smithsonian Institution reportedly discovered that pilot whales sometimes get parasitic roundworms in their inner ears. This knocks out their navigational savvy, so they blunder onto beaches to become stranded, fascinating, if factual.

Turkey, sugar prices fall

By JEANNE LEMM
 United Press International
 Thanksgiving dinner bargains this year have two things to be thankful for:
 Turkeys are priced at or below wholesale in super-markets across the United States, and the cost of sugar for holiday baking is dramatically lower than it was at the same time last year.
 Saul Kolodny, a vice president for economic research at Amstar Corp., says many stores are featuring a 5-pound bag of sugar at 49 cents, compared with the peak of about $1.50 last year.
 Kolodny said current prices are not out of range for what shoppers would have been paying if the sugar price spiral had never occurred.
 "A large number of chain stores are featuring sugar currently," he said. "They are back to using sugar as a traffic developer."
 The sugar trade expects prices to continue at their present levels into 1976.

because of substantial improvement in world supplies.
 The turkey supply for November was reported only adequate by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, but the average retail price per pound for frozen, unstuffed birds ranged between 41 and 51 cents in five major cities from coast to coast, compared with a wholesale average of 55 cents.
 The wholesale price range was 54 to 60.5 cents per pound for the last quarter of 1975.
 Kenneth L. Kilpen, director of industry relations for the National Turkey Federation in Reston, Va., said wholesale prices for the same period last year averaged 48.9 cents, down substantially from the 1973 wholesale price average of 61.6 cents.
